

Executive Summary

Energy storage will play a critical role in supporting New York's decarbonized electric grid by integrating large quantities of variable renewable energy, reducing curtailment, and storing renewable generation for the times it is needed most. On January 5, 2022, New York Governor Kathy Hochul announced in her State of the State address an intention to double the state's 2030 energy storage deployment target, from the currently legislated 3 gigawatts (GW) of storage to 6 GW of storage by 2030. This nation-leading storage target, in addition to an interim goal of 1.5 GW by 2025 established through the 2018 Storage Roadmap process, is motivated by the rapid growth in renewable energy expected over the next decade and the role that electrification of transportation and buildings is expected to play in achieving New York State's future carbon neutral economy. These directives are outlined in New York's Climate Leadership and Community Protection Act (Climate Act), which calls for New York to achieve 70% renewable electricity by 2030 and 100% zero-emissions electricity by 2040. To accelerate the deployment of storage and support the transition to a clean electric grid, Governor Hochul directed the Department of Public Service (DPS) and the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA) to update New York State's Energy Roadmap to double deployment, achieving at least 6 GW of energy storage deployments by 2030.

This document represents an updated Storage Roadmap, augmenting the 2018 Storage Roadmap, developed by NYSEDA and DPS Staff to meet the directive laid out by Governor Hochul. Specifically, this Roadmap assesses needed market reforms and cost-effective procurement mechanisms to achieve the increased storage target, identifies research and development needs to accelerate technology innovation, particularly for long-duration energy storage, and recommends approaches to storage deployments in a manner that furthers the state's efforts in replacing New York's most polluting fossil fuel facilities.

This updated 2022 Roadmap also analyzes the current market for energy storage in New York State, including the progress to date toward achieving the existing 3 GW target. It also serves as the Triennial Review of storage markets, policies and programs as required under the Public Service Commission's (Commission) 2018 Energy Storage Order.<sup>1</sup>

To serve the needs of a carbon neutral economy, analysis developed to support this Roadmap indicates that about 12 GW of energy storage by 2040 and 17+ GW by 2050 would be part of a cost-effective decarbonized electric grid, offering critical benefits in terms of grid reliability and integration of renewable generation. A new 2030 target of 6 GW will play a critical role in achieving the order-of-magnitude growth increases needed to put New York on a path towards these longer-term storage levels. A target of 6 GW of storage by 2030 is projected to reduce the projected future electric system costs by approximately $2 billion, in addition to public health benefits resulting from reduced exposure to harmful pollutants from fossil fuel resources that would otherwise operate during peak demand periods. NYSEDA and DPS Staff therefore recommend adopting an increased deployment target of 6 GW of energy storage by 2030.

A total of 1,301 megawatts (MW) of storage, representing about 87% of the 2025 target, has been awarded or contracted as of October 2022, with over 130 MW installed. Approximately 12,000 MW of proposed energy storage projects are presently in either distribution-level or wholesale-level interconnection queues in New York. These metrics convey the rapid growth of the storage industry's interest in the state since the 2018 Roadmap. However, notable barriers to deployment persist and, to some extent, have even increased recently.

Over the past year, supply chain constraints, material price increases, and increased competition for battery cells have driven up the cost of energy storage technologies, particularly lithium-ion batteries. Many of the drivers of cost increases are expected to persist until at least 2025. These cost increases may impact the cost of any new programs designed to procure storage to be installed by 2030. In addition to cost increases, difficulties in the timely completion of interconnection processes, high interconnection costs, and downward pressure on capacity revenue create a challenging environment through the development and operational lifecycle of a storage project. Financial support will therefore be crucial for the state to achieve the 3 GW and 6 GW deployment goals.

To reach the proposed 6 GW deployment goal by 2030, roughly 4,700 MW of new projects will need to be procured and deployed in the coming years. To maximize the feasibility of these procurements, diversify technology options, and take advantage of the unique benefits provided by different market segments, NYSERDA and DPS Staff recommend new programs be developed for bulk, retail, and residential storage projects across the state.

Based on a review of procurement options, market conditions, and past programs for bulk storage resources, NYSERDA and DPS Staff recommend a two-pronged approach to bulk storage deployment. First, 3,000 MW of bulk storage projects should be procured through a new Index Storage Credit mechanism, which is anticipated to provide long-term certainty to projects while maximizing value to ratepayers. Second, NYSERDA and DPS Staff recommend that the Joint Utilities of New York (JU) be directed to study the potential of energy storage to provide non-market transmission and distribution services and identify projects that provide cost-effective services when compared to traditional alternatives, and that any storage projects developed as a result should count toward the 6 GW target.

The existing retail and residential storage programs have proven successful, and NYSERDA and DPS Staff propose to extend their funding following a design of region-specific blocks of funding similar to that used to date. New programs should include 1,500 MW of program blocks for retail projects and 200 MW for residential storage programs.

The total cost of these proposed procurement programs is estimated at between $1.0 billion and $1.7 billion. This equates to an estimated increase in customer electric bills of 0.32% – 0.54% (or $0.34 – $0.58 per month for the average residential customer) on average across New York for the 22-year period during which these programs would make payments to awarded projects. The range of these projections reflects future uncertainties, most notably those associated with energy and capacity prices.

While most of the storage projects procured through 2030 are expected to provide 4- to 8-hours of duration, long-duration storage (capable of 10+ hours of duration) is expected to become an important component of the long-term energy system. It is therefore recommended that NYSERDA programs focus on supporting research, development, and demonstration of technologies that can provide reliable, zero-carbon supply and reach commercialization in the first half of the 2030s.

This combination of storage programs provides a feasible and cost-effective pathway to achieving the goal of deploying 6 GW of storage by 2030 on a trajectory that will support full decarbonization of the electricity system by 2040.
